Our Caregiver Support Group consists of on going meetings for care givers of individuals living with Alzheimer's and other dementias. We provide a forum for care givers to share feelings, needs and concerns in a confidential, safe, supportive, non-threatening and non-judgmental atmosphere. Cross Road Retirement Community Alzheimer's and Dementia Caregivers Support Group is open to anyone caring for individuals living with Alzheimer's and other dementias.

While you attend the meeting, your loved one can socialize with the residents in our Memory Care unit while being supervised by our caring staff.

Our group provides an opportunity for members to:

- Exchange practical care giving information, challenges and possible solutions.
- Share ways to adapt to the ongoing stress of care giving.
- Express and work through feelings of fear, frustration, worry, guilt, anger and other care giver emotions.
- Assist family members in understanding the impact of the disease on family dynamics and develop realistic expectations of themselves and the person living with Alzheimer's or other dementias.
- Provide social contact for those who feel isolated because of their care responsibilities.
- Connect people with similar experiences so they support each other outside of meetings.
- Emphasize the importance of maintaining physical and mental health through respite and involvement in family life, work, community, social and recreational activities.

Care givers are encouraged to attend alone so they can be open and honest about their personal situation.

Cross Road Retirement Community Alzheimer's and Dementia Caregiver's Support Group meets the second Thursday of each month at 6:30 pm in our Activity Annex building located at 1302 Old Cox Road, Asheboro, NC 27205.
